

The filehost statically serves the application's files but also returns the same index file on any unknown route request.

